PROJETECH INC. CHOSEN BY IBM AS THE FIRST AUTHORIZED INDEPENDENT TRAINING PROVIDER SPECIALIZING IN MAXIMO

Cincinnati, OH, August 22, 2007 — Projotech, a business partner of IBM since February of 2006, has become the first IBM Authorized Independent Training Provider (AITP) focused on Maximo software.

Projotech has been teaching Maximo to students from a wide variety of industries since 1990. Projotech has public and customized classes in Maximo versions 4, 5, and 6.

IBM has selected Projotech as the first IBM Business Partner to become certified to teach IBM Maximo classes. Projotech instructors are now certified to teach official IBM Maximo classes either at the Projotech Cincinnati location, onsite at a client location, or at an IBM facility.

“We are very much honored to be chosen as the first AITP for Maximo,” says Business Development Director Tanya McCall. “Our instructors have worked diligently to become certified, and it is great to get recognition from IBM for our efforts. We look forward to providing our students with the highest quality of Maximo trainers and resources.”

This new AITP status will ensure Projotech’s students that they are getting a high standard of Maximo education taught by Maximo certified instructors.

According to IBM, AITP Business Partners give end users expanded opportunities in meeting their technical training needs on IBM products. AITP Business Partners also have been approved and enabled to provide comprehensive services and solutions that includes IBM Authorized training.
