MACK PARROTT, INSTRUCTOR/PROJECT MANAGER OF PROJETECH, INC. ACHIEVES MAXIMO ITSM CERTIFICATION

Cincinnati, OH, June 17, 2007 - Mack Parrott was chosen by IBM to take part in the first IBM Information Technology Service Management (ITSM) Consultant examination. He successfully passed the exam and is now Maximo ITSM Certified. Parrott is an Instructor/Project Manager for Projotech, Inc, an IBM Business Partner, that sells IBM Maximo licenses, and provides IBM AITP certified training courses.

"Mack's certification is quite an achievement," says President and Owner of Projotech, Steve Richmond, "He has proven himself as an excellent Project Manager and Instructor. Our instructors have done a fantastic job excelling at Maximo EAM, now we are gaining additional knowledge in Maximo ITSM."

In order to qualify as a Maximo ITSM Certified Consultant, individual candidates must pass a rigorous computer-based exam specific to the Maximo application release. Maximo certification provides an impartial measurement of a consultant's knowledge and helps ensure the overall success of a Maximo implementation.

According to IBM, this new exam defines the important professional skills and knowledge that an application consultant needs to demonstrate proficiency in Maximo 6 ITSM. The exam also tests this knowledge in the context of a consultant's major activities and responsibilities to successfully implement a Maximo 6 ITSM solution.

This certification signifies that Parrott has proven he is up to IBM standards of excellence in the Maximo 6 ITSM software. Parrott has been with Projotech for over 8 years.
